Apologising Professionally – apologise professionally

You know the apology scale — now practise naming the mistake, taking responsibility, and offering a solution.

Match the strength to the mistake and complete the apology:

name it → own it → ; at fix it work,

I do apologise for ...

is the standard form.

BRICK 1 · SORT REAL AND NON-APOLOGIES · APPROX. 4 MIN

Put each statement in one column: does it genuinely acknowledge the mistake, or only show sympathy, evasion, or blame-shifting?

I'm sorry to hear that your launch has been postponed.

I do apologise for sending an inactive meeting link.

Please accept our apologies for cancelling today's product training.

I'm sorry if the expired code caused trouble.

Mistakes were made during your account setup.

We apologise for mislabelling the sample cartons.

I'm sorry you feel disappointed by the revised schedule.

I'm writing to apologise for leaving out the attachment.

| NON-APOLOGY / SYMPATHY | REAL APOLOGY |
|------------------------|--------------|
|                        |              |
|                        |              |

BRICK 3 · FIND AND CORRECT THE MISTAKE · APPROX. 7 MIN

Each English sentence contains exactly one mistake involving word class, function, or responsibility. Underline it and rewrite the full sentence professionally.

01 I apology for placing your logo on the outdated brochure.

02 I'm sorry if the contact form was unavailable this morning.

.....

03 I apologise leaving your parking permit unactivated.

04 My apologise for the missing inspection certificate.

05 Mistakes were made with your onboarding paperwork.

.....

06 I'm sorry you feel that way about the early closure of our helpdesk.

BRICK 4 · WRITE COMPLETE APOLOGIES · APPROX. 8 MIN

Write one short English sentence for each situation. Use the given starter and add responsibility or a concrete solution.

01 A calendar invitation shows the wrong time zone: start with "I do apologise for ..." and correct the error.

02 A safety training session was cancelled at short notice: start with "Please accept our sincere apologies for ..." and give a replacement date.

03 An email is missing the compliance certificate: start with "I'm writing to apologise for ..." and take responsibility.

04 A customer received navy display units instead of white ones: start with "We apologise for ..." and add "To put this right, ..." with a solution.

MINI-CHECK – CAN I DO THIS YET?

- ☐ I match the strength and register to the mistake and the person affected.
- ☐ I name the mistake, take responsibility, offer a solution, and avoid "sorry if ...".
- ☐ I use "Excuse me" before a disturbance, "Sorry" afterwards, and recognise "I'm sorry to hear that" as sympathy.
- ☐ I distinguish the verb apologise/apologize from apology/apologies and use apologise for plus a noun or -ing form.

Answer key

Check only when you have finished. Every answer comes with the why — the rule matters more than the result.

BRICK 1 · SORTING

01 Non-apology / sympathy I'm sorry to hear that your launch has been postponed.

This phrase expresses sympathy, not an apology.

02 Real apology I do apologise for sending an inactive meeting link.

The professional phrase names the specific mistake.

03 Real apology Please accept our apologies for cancelling today's product training.

The formal apology clearly names the reason.

04 Non-apology / sympathy I'm sorry if the expired code caused trouble.

If questions whether any problem occurred.

05 Non-apology / sympathy Mistakes were made during your account setup.

The passive avoids taking responsibility.

06 Real apology We apologise for mislabelling the sample cartons.

The company apologises for a specific error.

07 Non-apology / sympathy I'm sorry you feel disappointed by the revised schedule.

It addresses the feeling instead of the mistake.

08 Real apology I'm writing to apologise for leaving out the attachment.

The written opener names the specific omission.

BRICK 2 · FILL-IN

01 do

The stressed do makes the apology emphatic.

02 apologies

The phrase needs the plural noun apologies.

03 Excuse

Excuse me comes before an interruption.

04 sorry

Sorry follows after something went wrong.

05 for

Apologise takes for plus an -ing form.

06 we'll

We'll introduces a concrete company promise.

07 right

The fixed phrase is To put this right.

08 hear

Sorry to hear expresses sympathy.

BRICK 3 · CORRECT

01 I apologise for placing your logo on the outdated brochure.

After I, use the verb apologise.

02 I'm sorry that the contact form was unavailable this morning.

Remove if because the problem definitely happened.

03 I apologise for leaving your parking permit unactivated.

Apologise always takes for before the object.

04 My apologies for the missing inspection certificate.

After my, use the noun apologies.

05 This was our error with the onboarding paperwork.

This was our error clearly takes ownership.

06 I apologise for closing our helpdesk early.

A real apology names your own mistake.

BRICK 4 · WRITE

Your sentences may differ — just check that they clearly name the mistake and include responsibility or a concrete solution.

01 I do apologise for listing the wrong time zone — that was my mistake, and I've sent a corrected invitation.

It names, owns, and fixes the calendar error.

02 Please accept our sincere apologies for cancelling the safety training — we'll offer a replacement session next Tuesday.

The formal opener is paired with a dated remedy.

03 I'm writing to apologise for omitting the compliance certificate — I should have checked, and it's attached now.

The sentence names the omission and takes responsibility.

04 We apologise for delivering navy units instead of white ones; to put this right, we'll exchange them on Monday.

The apology includes a concrete exchange plan.
