BRICK 1 · SORT BY CAUSE AND FEELING · APPROX. 4 MIN

Sort each phrase. On the left, something causes a feeling; on the right, a person experiences it.

an inspiring project brief

a frustrating software bug

the reassuring test result

a distracting office alarm

an entertaining team quiz

an inspired design team

a frustrated support agent

the reassured account manager

a distracted workshop guest

an entertained group of interns

CAUSE: -ING

FEELING: -ED

BRICK 2 · COMPLETE WITH THE RIGHT ADJECTIVE · APPROX. 6 MIN

BRICK 3 · FIND AND CORRECT THE MISTAKE · APPROX. 7 MIN

Each sentence contains exactly one participle-adjective mistake. Underline it and rewrite the complete sentence.

01 Ravi was confusing by the new dashboard.

02 The feedback session was very interested.

.....

03 After the overnight shift, the guards looked tiring.

04 The cancelled order was deeply disappointed.

.....

05 Our worried forecast made the investors pause.

.....

06 The trainees felt relaxing after the breathing exercise.

.....

BRICK 4 · WRITE YOUR OWN EFFECT PAIRS · APPROX. 8 MIN

Write one English sentence or sentence pair for each prompt. Make the cause and experiencer clear.

01 Webinar: use interesting for the content and interested for one participant.

02 Client call: use confusing for an explanation and confused for the client.

.....

03 Long workday: connect tiring and tired in a sentence pair.

.....

04 Adjective position: use one participle adjective before a noun and another after be.

.....

MINI-CHECK – CAN I DO THIS YET?

- ☐ I first ask what causes a feeling and who experiences it.
- ☐ I usually use -ing for the cause and -ed for the person with the feeling.
- ☐ I place participle adjectives before nouns or after verbs such as be, look, and seem.
- ☐ I check every cause-and-feeling pair in a complete English sentence.

Unsure? Mark the cause and the person experiencing the feeling in two colours, then try the sheet again.

Answer key

Check only when you have finished. Every answer comes with the why — the rule matters more than the result.
